Ground Broken For Rec Center

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Wednesday afternoon, March 19, for the $1.5 million recreation center now under construction.

The building, scheduled for completion by the start of the 1986-87 academic year, is being constructed by Wilhelm Construction Company of Indianapolis. The structure will have 32,300 square feet of space and will house three full-size playing courts for basketball, volleyball, tennis, badminton, and floor hockey, plus provisions for racquetball and aerobics. The courts will be encircled by a 10-foot wide running track.

The rec center will be connected to Raleigh Hall and the Alumni Fieldhouse.

Vice president for Business Affairs Jim Thatcher said energy conservation devices such as a power load shedding system will be employed in the structure. Hooked into the College's computer, the system will automatically shut off various motors not in use and thereby reduce peak power usage. The building's design, featuring movable partitions, will allow for ease and economy of maintenance.

Thatcher said upgrading the Fieldhouse and Raleigh Hall are also part of the recreation center construction program. Parking lot lighting is also expected to be improved.

Nursing Program Started

Saint Joseph's has instituted a bachelor of science in nursing program, in conjunction with Saint Elizabeth Hospital in Lafayette, Ind.

The program is designed for the easiest possible articulation with the diploma program at Saint Elizabeth, thus providing these RNs with a time- and cost-efficient way of completing the BSN degree. Recent recipients of the RN diploma need only take 24 credits in SJC's Core program of general education and 24 hours in nursing.

The program's philosophy statement says, "It is our aim to offer a program which stimulates nurses to think analytically, to pursue independent learning experiences, to develop a greater awareness of and sensitivity to themselves and other people, and to make personal and professional judgments through the synthesis of knowledge gained from the natural sciences, the liberal arts, and nursing science."

Youngstown Bishop Addresses '86 Grads

One hundred and twenty-two SJC graduates were urged to involve themselves in the issues of the arms race and world hunger by Bishop James Malone of the Diocese of Youngstown, Ohio at the College's 91st annual commencement exercises.

Bishop Malone, president of the National Council of Catholic Bishops, stressed, "You graduates should do all you can to create a world climate in which moral choices can be made."

He cited "two interrelated issues" as overriding concerns: the nuclear arms race and world hunger. "Thirty children die needlessly each minute from starvation or lack of vaccine, while during each simultaneous minute $1.3 billion is spent on weapons of war."

The pastoral letters on war and peace and on the economy, issued by the Catholic bishops, "have called for a negotiated agreement to halt the building, testing, and deployment of nuclear arms, plus a commitment to alleviate world hunger," Bishop Malone said.

"Be Prepared, Patient, and Faithful"

Bishop Malone also told the graduates that three characteristics will serve them well in the years ahead: preparation, patience, and fidelity.

"People will listen to you if you become an involved and knowledgeable spokesman on the critical issues of today," he said. "But preparation is necessary if you are to become well-informed. Preparation also is essential as you enter a professional world where it is estimated that you will make at least three career changes."

He encouraged the graduates to develop patience

"in this high-tech age of instant communication and instant information" and said, "fidelity means that you should be faithful to your commitments, both in your personal life and in your profession."

Graduates Called "Survivors"

Bishop Malone addressed the graduates as "survivors," noting that, for every 100 youngsters who enter the first grade, 91 reach the fifth grade, 89 enter high school, 74 receive their high school diploma, 46 enter college, and "less than 25 percent" get their college degree.

ADDRESS CORRECTION REQUESTED

Presidents' Corner

Elsewhere in this issue of Contact, you'll find a form which asks you to recommend a high school student who would make a good Saint Joe student (and future alum!). I urge you to let us know of anyone who might benefit from the same education you were privileged to share in.

I ask you, too, not to underestimate the importance of personally promoting your alma mater among your peers and their offspring. A simple expression of appreciation for your own Saint Joe experience can spark enough interest to cause a student to apply, matriculate, and graduate to join the ranks of SJC alumni. Often it's the personal recommendation of a school which most profoundly influences young people, especially given the deluge of admissions

While summer is traditionally a time of vacation-taking and lessened activity, the pace of activity at Saint Joe has reached a fever pitch.

Construction of the new recreation center highlights the campus' hustle and bustle, but other remarkable changes are taking place as well. High-tech window treatment is being installed in several of the older dormitories, giving them an impressive facelift and making them more energy-efficient. Fire escapes and other safety features are also being added or enhanced.

In another readily apparent improvement, flood lights now illuminate the facade of the College Chapel at night, bringing nocturnal attention to this landmark and the symbol of materials which often overwhelm today's junior and senior high school students.

Saint Joseph's is people, and I know I can count on our Pumas to speak out on behalf of the College when the situation arises. Our need is great, but so is the help that can be provided by our alumni and friends.

Tuition Goes Up

Saint Joseph's College will increase its tuition, room, and board rates by $550 to a total of $8,590 for the 1986-87 academic year.

The Executive Committee of the College's Board of Trustees approved this 6.8 percent cost increase upon the recommendation of Jim Thatcher, vice president for business affairs. Of the $550 increase, tuition will rise by $410 to $5,920 per year, room by $80 to $1,080, and board by $60 to $1,590.

"We expect the average cost increases in private colleges and universities to approach seven to eight percent nationwide for 1986-87, and our ability to control costs has allowed us to minimize the financial burden that our students and their families must shoulder," explains Thatcher.

He adds that the cost increases are necessary to provide merit raises to faculty and staff; to cover an 83 percent increase in fire, liability, and comprehensive insurance premiums; to cover increases in Social Security payroll taxes; and to maintain student aid at a level comparable with the 1985-86 year.

"Our 1986-87 costs will allow Saint Joseph's to remain in the mid-range of all private colleges and universities within Indiana," says Thatcher.

Tuition Bargain for Area Residents

Saint Joseph's is offering a bargain to local residents who wish to attend the College on a part-time basis. The normal tuition charge of $186 per credit hour is, for local residents who take one course each semester, only $75 per credit hour — $225 for a three-hour course.

"We encourage people to take a course here. Homemakers or working people might prefer an early-morning or lunch-time course, for example," explains Mary Margaret Smith, assistant vice president for academic affairs. Evening courses are also offered.

"We want to extend our services to area residents and encourage them to become a part of our programs," Smith adds.

President Banet and honorees Zid, Malone, and Madden.

Three Awarded Honorary Degrees

Saint Joseph's awarded three honorary doctor of laws degrees at this year's commencement exercises.

James E. Madden

James E. Madden, a 1964 SJC graduate in accounting and a College trustee since 1975, is secretary-treasurer of Rider Dickerson, Inc. in Chicago.

Madden has served as chairman of the trustees' development committee and as vice chairman of the College's successful $7 million capital campaign. He is also a past president of the SJC Alumni Association.

Other affiliations include: the Lt. Joseph Kennedy Jr. School for Exceptional Children (chairman of the finance committee), the Irish Fellowship Club of Chicago, the Citizens' Advisory Finance Committee of School District 118, and the development committee of St. Michael's Parish.

Madden, his wife, and two children reside in Palos Park, Ill.

Bishop James W. Malone

Bishop James Malone, this year's commencement speaker, has headed the Youngstown, Ohio diocese since 1968. He was elected president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops/United States Catholic Conference in 1983, following three years as vice president of the organization.

A native of Youngstown, Bishop Malone was ordained a priest on May 25, 1945. He was ordained a bishop on March 24, 1960 and appointed as auxiliary bishop of Youngstown. He served as vicar general (1965-66) and apostolic administrator (1966-68) before his installation as Youngstown's ordinary on June 20, 1968.

Bishop Malone studied at St. Charles College (Catonsville, Md.) during 1938-40 and at St. Mary Seminary (Cleveland, Ohio) during 1940-45. He received a Ph.D. from the Catholic University of America in 1957.

Bishop Malone comes from a working-class background: his father was a steelworker, and during summer breaks from the seminary the future bishop himself worked in the steel mills.

James F. Zid

James Zid, who received a bachelor of science degree in accounting from Saint Joe in 1955 and who now serves on the College's Board of Trustees, is managing partner of the Columbus, Ohio office of Ernst & Whinney.

Zid joined Ernst & Whinney in Chicago in 1957, after spending two years in the U.S. Navy. In 1968, he transferred to the firm's Fort Wayne, Ind. office as managing partner.

He served in Ernst & Whinney's national office in Cleveland as partner in charge of specialized industries from 1972 until 1981, when he assumed his current position.

Zid is a member of the Ohio Society of Certified Public Accountants and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Other affiliations include: the Coalition for Cost-Effective Health Care Services, Columbus Art Museum, Columbus Symphony Orchestra, Ballet Metropolitan, Development Committee of Greater Columbus, Greater Columbus Chamber of Commerce, Inroads and Players Theatre.

Largest Gift In College History Received

Richard Hanson, president of Stein & Company in Chicago, has given $500,000 to Saint Joseph's College — the largest outright gift ever to the school — to assist the current construction of a $1.9 million recreation center.

Half of the gift from Hanson and his wife Maureen is a matching grant designed to stimulate additional giving. The 32,300-square-foot recreation center will be funded through private contributions.

Hanson, a 1963 alumnus of Saint Joseph's, is a member of the College's Board of Trustees and chairman of the Advisory Council Development Task Force. This task force is heading the effort to raise the funds necessary to finance the recreation center.

Hanson also is a charter member of the Father Banet Club, named in honor of Saint Joseph's president, which includes contributors who have given $5,000 to the school's annual operating fund.

Hanson joined Stein & Company, a Chicago-based real estate development firm, in 1984 as president and chief operating officer. Since its founding in 1971, the firm has been responsible for premier office developments valued at more than $1.3 billion and containing five million square feet.

Hanson is the former chairman of Coopers & Lybrand's National Real Estate Group and former tax partner with their Chicago office. As a nationally known tax authority, he has provided consultation to institutions, real estate syndicators and developers.

Third Annual Phonathon

The 1986 Phonathon saw dozens of students, faculty, staff, and alumni volunteers phone alumni in support of the College's Annual Fund, March 9-13. The five-day fundraising blitz brought in over $40,000 in pledges and helped to update the College's address and employment information on

Chicago Phonathon

Chicago alumni banded together the evening of May 21 to revive the tradition of the local phonathon, raising nearly $2,000 in pledges for the Annual Fund. Jim Deegan '59 of the Alumni Board secured the Loop offices of his firm, The Chicago Corporation, for use by the alumni phoners.

Class Agents

The 1986 class agents appeal kept pace with last year's effort, bringing in more than 100 gifts for over $5,000. It also served as a prelude to the March phonathon.

The Class of 1969 raised the most gifts and the highest total. Congratulations to the class and their agent, J. Eric Farfaring!

Class of 1961

The Class of 1961, under the leadership of David Cook '61, has raised nearly $150,000 in deferred gifts as part of the class' 25-year reunion gift appeal. Cook's goal is 100% class participation in this fundraising effort.

Admissions Director Appointed

Kenneth R. Rasp, assistant director of admissions at the College of Mount St. Joseph in Cincinnati, Ohio since 1982, has been appointed director of admissions at Saint Joseph's College, it has been announced by Dr. John Nichols, vice president for academic affairs.

Rasp received a bachelor of arts degree in history and religious studies from Edgecliff College (Cincinnati) in 1977 and a master of education degree in guidance and counseling from Xavier University (Cincinnati) in 1981.

He served as a teacher at St. Mark's Elementary School (Cincinnati) in 1977, was assistant director of admissions at Edgecliff College during Rasp is married to the former Kathy Flum of Hamilton, Ohio. They have one son, Benjamin, 7 months.

$37,600 Received For Latin Studies

Saint Joseph's College has received a $37,600 grant from the Consortium for the Advancement of Private Higher Education (CAPHE) to help develop a Latin American studies program.

Project director is Dr. Phil Posey, professor of history and chairman of SJC's department of history-political science. The grant total will be matched by the College.

The grant comes as part of CAPHE grants totaling $1.2 million to 41 colleges and universities. CAPHE is a philanthropic consortium of major U.S. corporations and foundations that invest collaboratively in independent institutions of higher education.

CAPHE concentrates on helping independent liberal arts colleges respond to the changing needs of students, employers, and society. CAPHE president Michael O'Keefe explains, "Many colleges need money for planning or market analysis or for modifying academic programs to address the needs of a new generation of students — projects that enhance institutional vitality but that are hard for many college presidents to finance through operating budgets."

Major supporters of CAPHE include the Alcoa Foundation, the AT&T Foundation, the Carnegie Corporation of New York, the Exxon Education Foundation, The Ford Foundation, The James Irvine Foundation, The Prudential Foundation, and The Standard Oil Company (Ohio).

Additional CAPHE support comes from the Atlantic Richfield Foundation, CBS Inc., The Chase Manhattan Bank, The Pfizer Foundation, the Southern Education Foundation, and the Tandy Corporation.

Sears Grant Announced

Saint Joseph's College has received an unrestricted grant of $800 from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

The grant is part of grants of over $38,900 to 28 privately supported colleges and universities in Indiana. These institutions of higher education are among 956 private, accredited, two- and four-year institutions across the country that are sharing in $1,750,000 in Sears Foundation funds for the 1985-86 academic year.

Earl Ellis, manager of the Sears store at Southlake Mall in Merrillville, Ind., made the presentation to Saint Joseph's.

Latin Studies Added To Curriculum

Saint Joseph's plans to introduce a semester of Latin American study into its nationally acclaimed Core curriculum of general education in January 1988.

$37,600 Grant Received

Implementation of the Latin American study program received a vital boost earlier this spring when Saint Joseph's received a $37,600 grant from the Consortium for the Advancement of Private Higher Education (CAPHE) to assist the development of this program. The grant total will be matched by the College.

Project Director Dr. Phil Posey

Project director is Dr. Phil Posey, professor of history and chairman of Saint Joseph's department of history-political science.

Dr. Posey says the grant will be used in four major undertakings, the first being two faculty development workshops, one of which took place in May 1986 and the other scheduled for May 1987. The workshops include visits by specialists who will address SJC faculty on topics such as the history, culture, and society of Latin America.

"Second, the grant will provide opportunities for three Saint Joe faculty to visit Central America in 1986 and three additional faculty to visit South America in 1987," explains Dr. Posey.

"Latin America is of growing importance to our national interests and world peace."

Puma Personalities

Dr. Karen Craig, associate professor of education, has been named co-chairman of the Program Committee of the Association of Teacher Educators Indiana Unit and the Indiana Association for Colleges of Teacher Education.

Both organizations share the goal of constantly upgrading teacher education programs at all colleges and universities in Indiana.

Patricia Franklin, instructor in education, has been selected to serve on the steering committee of the Indiana branch of the American Association of Teacher Educators.

David Osterfeld, associate professor of political science, was recently named to the Advisory Board of the Heartland Institute, a non-profit think tank designed to provide government officials with analyses of problems confronting state and local governments in the Midwest. He was also named to the editorial board of the Journal of Social, Political and Economic Studies.

Osterfeld is a Fellow of the Institute for Humane Studies, George Mason University, Fairfax, Va., in which capacity he writes an editorial a month for public release. He has recently had numerous articles published.

Father Ambrose Ruschau, C.P.P.S., associate professor of physics, has left Saint Joe and is seeking a parish assignment from his religious superior. Until such an assignment is made, Father Ruschau will reside at St. Charles Seminary, Carthage, OH 45822 (419/825-4516).

Dave Smith, women's basketball coach, is one of three people nominated by the National Women's Basketball Coaches Association as District Four Coach of the Year. District Four includes colleges from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

Dr. William White, associate professor of history, participated in the sixth annual meeting of the Indiana Association of Historians at DePauw University, March 21-22. Participants concentrated on the history of higher education, gender issues, civil liberties, and fine arts in Indiana.

Promotions

Saint Joseph's has announced the promotion of four faculty members:

Dr. Allen Berger, from assistant to associate professor of anthropology. He received his doctorate from Columbia University earlier this year and joined Saint Joe's faculty in 1979.

Dr. William Hogan, from assistant to associate professor of business administration. He received his doctorate from Bowling Green (Ohio) State University in 1980 and joined the faculty in 1981.

David Chattin, from instructor to assistant professor of psychology. He received a master of arts degree in experimental cognitive psychology from Vanderbilt University in 1982 and joined the faculty in 1984.

Patricia Franklin, from instructor to assistant professor of education. She received a master's degree in education from Ball State University in 1982 and joined the faculty in 1985.

Third, various Saint Joseph's faculty will do independent research on various aspects of Latin America. Finally, the grant will help the College add Latin American instructional materials to its library and classroom holdings.

Alternate with African Studies

Dr. Posey says the semester of Latin American studies will be included in the Core 8 section and will alternate every other year with a semester of African studies.

He adds that the grant "provides an enormous opportunity for the development of the Latin American segment of our curriculum. The grant comes at an important juncture in our Core program because we had already decided to insert a Latin American segment into Core's intercultural dimension. This decision came as a result of our realization of the growing importance of Latin America to our own national interests and the advancement of world peace."

Dr. Posey says Saint Joseph's has a built-in advantage in developing a Latin American studies program because several priests who are present and past members of the faculty have visited Latin America and served as missionaries there.

"We'll be able to utilize their already-developed expertise in the classroom," he reports.

Internships Link Studies And Work

"Internships get our students in a professional setting in their field of study. They provide the perfect link between study and work," says Mary Margaret Smith, assistant vice president for academic affairs.

Internship programs at Saint Joe have achieved ready and appreciated success primarily because they are constructed so that the student, the employer, and the College all emerge as winners.

An internship is a practical learning experience outside the educational institution in an organization dealing with the line of work a student hopes to enter. At Saint Joseph's, these experiences are organized in a series of programs, including:

- An IBM program in computer science and marketing.
- Broadcast internships at Rensselaer, Lafayette, and Indianapolis media outlets.
- A public administration internship at Jasper County Hospital.
- Marketing internships with Signature Group, K-Mart, Bradford Exchange, Farm Builders, Capital Products, and Blamer Wholesale Food Distributors.
- Accounting internships with David Culpardlo; Kapp, Sapper and Miller; Price-Waterhouse; Hartley, McKenna and Flood; Coopers & Lybrand; Ernst & Whinney; Peat, Marwick & Mitchell; and Main-Hurdman.
- Psychology internships with Jasper-Newton Mental Health Center.
- Sociology internships at several social agencies and hospitals.
- Government internships with the Indiana legislature and a member of the U.S. Congress.

"Internships provide work experiences at the entry level in various fields, and the benefits of these programs are significant for everyone involved," says Smith. "Because of this, we are constantly seeking ways to expand our

Student Applies Studies To Hospital Administration

Peg Schumann, a political science major who graduated this May, recently completed two semesters as a public administration intern at Jasper County Hospital, and she minces no words about what this experience has done for her.

"You can be knowledgeable by virtue of what you've read in books, but you also must have the experience, and that's what I got through this internship," she begins. "Originally,

"I had opportunities every day to apply what I had learned about public administration to the real world."

She says that she hopes her first full-time job following

Peg Schumann '86

Though this internship is designed as a one-semester experience, she was pleasantly surprised when Jasper County Hospital officials invited her to return as an intern again during the fall semester of the 1985-86 academic year. During this period, her work experiences were expanded to include tasks on statistics and budget preparation.

Schumann's minor is accounting, so she found her budget work quite appealing, and says that she found numerous applications on the job for principles she learned in classes such as public administration, legislative behavior, and management.

Expanding Job Horizons

"Fuad Hammoudeh really boosted my confidence in my ability to serve as an administrator, and this experience has affirmed my desire to go into public administration as a career," reports Schumann. "I have sent my resume to hospitals as well as business firms dealing in sales, because with the expansion of foreign trade, there are many job opportunities here."

Schumann says her internship "expresses what I can do for a future employer, and I will always remember that my first public administration working experience was a good one."

FOCUS ON:

internship opportunities with the help of our friends in business, government, and agencies in the region."

She explains that internships provide students with their first professional experiences in their chosen fields, and often their initial reference for post-graduate employment comes from the intern's employer. In a few cases, the students have returned to this employer to work after graduation.

"For Saint Joseph's, these internships provide a valuable link to business, government, and agencies who can help us make sure that our courses and curriculum are in keeping with the needs of professionals in the field," Smith reports. "For the employer, these interns offer a welcome source of manpower, and finally, communities as a whole benefit from the higher quality of candidates entering the professional world."

I believed my bachelor's degree in political science would simply lead me toward law school, but this internship has increased my employability and range of options unbelievably."

Schumann applied for the internship following a suggestion from Mary Margaret Smith, assistant professor of political science and business administration, and says she was pleased and surprised when she became the student selected as the intern.

Seeing How People Work Together

"Books can give you knowledge, but they can't teach you how to handle people's feelings, to learn your job in depth, to see what's involved in managing and motivating people, and to get a truly practical understanding of human relations," she reports.

Schumann admits she entered the internship with a slight fear of the unknown, "but within three to four weeks I became quite familiar with most of my fellow workers in the Jasper County Hospital administration. The hospital is run very professionally, but people there are very friendly and are like members of a family. It was sad for me to leave there because I really felt like a part of the administration."

graduation will be similar to her work at Jasper County Hospital in this respect: "I saw there that you must feel close to the people you work with if you are to work together best as a unit. I also saw that in managing people it's so much more effective to give them a choice instead of just telling them what to do."

Applying Classroom Knowledge

Schumann's internship first took place from January to April 1986, and during that time she worked with hospital administrator Fuad Hammoudeh in a series of managerial chores. She attended staff and board meetings, completed varied sorts of paperwork, and assisted in personnel procedures.

"I had opportunities every day to apply what I had learned about public administration to the real world," she explains.

Accounting Intern Gains Experience And Permanent Job

Sometimes a student's internship is translated, upon graduation, into a full-time job.

That's just what happened to Ruthann Goller, accounting major from Lansdale, Pa., who will join the staff of Coopers & Lybrand at Indianapolis this September.

Goller interned with the Indianapolis firm from January to March 1986 and performed a wide range of auditing duties, from cash and investments to sampling and testing in various areas and observing an inventory.

"I worked anywhere from 40 to 60 hours per week, and the experience was well worth it," Goller reports. "Once you build a base of experience, you can gradually assume greater responsibility and begin to advance."

She intends to establish a career in public accounting and says one of her long-range goals is to become a partner in a public accounting firm.

On Par with Employees

"My main concern upon starting this internship was whether I would be competitive with other employees at entry-level positions," says Goller.

It took very little time for her to realize that her accounting training at Saint Joseph's had indeed prepared her well for the challenges of the professional world. Nor did it take Coopers & Lybrand long to recognize a solid professional of the future and to offer her a position as a full-time staff member.

Last summer, Goller worked for the accounting firm of Bowman & Company in Collingswood, N.J., where she returned this summer to work while living at home with her parents.

"It will be my 'summer vacation' of sorts before I come back to Indianapolis to work in the fall," she explains.

Specific accounting firms specialize in specific types of work, and Goller says her two employers have given her a wide range of experience: Coopers & Lybrand concentrates on auditing and taxes, with the bulk of its clients being insurance, banking, real estate, and manufacturing firms; Bowman & Company is primarily involved in governmental accounting.

SJC Experience Helped

Saint Joseph's rural setting, solid academic atmosphere, and helpful faculty have made Goller's college experience academically and personally satisfying.

"Teachers here are always ready to help you and they make themselves readily available to you," she reports. "They're ready to listen to any problems you may have and do what they can to help; it means a lot just to know that help is there if you need it."

Goller says the weekly accounting seminar, where accounting faculty help freshman to senior accounting students with classwork, is especially helpful, and she also appreciates the structure of the accounting internship program.

"Teachers at Saint Joe are always ready to help you."

"I have friends who study accounting at other colleges and universities, and they tell me that they have to go out and find their own internships, but here Mr. Kasky (G. Robert Kasky, assistant professor of accounting) guides you into the program, helps find professional firms to participate as employers of interns, and helps you prepare resumes and get ready for interviews as you approach graduation," she points out.

Goller says her desire to become an accountant was sparked by one of her high school accounting teachers, and she chose Saint Joseph's because of its strong reputation in both accounting and general education.

Adapting to Saint Joseph's nationally recognized Core curriculum of general education wasn't difficult for her because, she explains, "I had taken a series of college-preparation honors courses in high school and I immediately liked Core when I came here. I especially appreciate the emphasis that the Core program places on effective writing."

Nation's Capitol Is Arena For U.S. Congress Intern

Illinois Fourth District Congressman George O'Brien had SJC junior Tom Stefaniak, Jr. working for him in Washington, D.C. from September to December 1985.

What other sort of internship would enable you to meet influential political figures like Kansas Senator Bob Dole and New York Representative Jack Kemp, or have breakfast with Illinois Senator Paul Simon? How else might you attend sessions of Congress when President Reagan returned from his summit meeting last November or when the prime minister of Singapore addressed Congress?

These were just a few highlights for Stefaniak, who makes it clear that "I wouldn't trade this experience for anything; I'd do it again in a second. Internships that pertain to your career goals give you a concrete grasp of what you'll be doing as a professional."

Stefaniak plans to enter law school and concentrate on criminal law. "I might like to be an assistant state's attorney, but it's possible that corporate law may develop into my area of greatest interest. Whatever the case, I would like to get established in a profession first, then possibly run for political office."

Work Varied and Challenging

His daily workload was varied and challenging: he might spend up to two hours each day sorting the usual mountain of mail and channeling each item to the proper legislative assistant. Few things are more important to a congressman than maintaining close ties with his constituents and representing the concerns of his home district with sensitivity and understanding.

In this regard, Stefaniak worked extensively with constituents, whether answering letters or returning phone calls. He also attended various House and Senate subcommittee hearings, handled no small number of form letters, and hunted down documents requested by Congressman O'Brien.

"When you work closely with a congressman's staff, you see quickly how important that staff is to him," says Stefaniak. "The staff knows what issues are most important to a congressman and his district, and staff members know what lobbyists represent what concerns. Due to the sheer volume of work, a congressman must rely heavily on his staff, though different congressmen rely on their staffs to varying degrees."

"When you work for a congressman, you see quickly how important the staff is to him."

A staff is very instrumental in informing its congressman about issues, says Stefaniak, but the representative makes up his mind on an issue-to-issue basis; his personal convictions are important in the decision-making process.

Stefaniak says that even a relatively routine workday in a congressman's office is a high-pressure affair that might run from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., with urgent deadlines constantly challenging the staff.

"Once you leave the office, your workday still might not be over because Washington has its own night life — a social whirl that is all part of the city's lifestyle," he explains. "I attended various social functions, and it's not easy to draw the line between what's social and what's business. Barriers are often relaxed at social functions and communications are actually more smooth than they might be in the office — a lot of business is conducted on the social scene, and there is a lot of good that comes from this social life."

Insight into Gov't Workings

By virtue of his internship, Stefaniak says he has a much clearer idea of how the U.S. Government works.

"I've seen the complexities and red tape involved in government, and I am now more tolerant of inefficiencies there," he believes. "Political figures may exert influence, but you learn quickly that no one person is solely responsible for anything. The system of checks and balances is bigger than any one politician."

Stefaniak also challenges the notion that federal workers are lazy bureaucrats. "I regard this idea as a myth; many federal employees work 50 to 60 hours a week but get paid for just 40 hours of work. I saw a lot of people in Washington doing everything in their power to see that the government is run efficiently."

Stefaniak learned a great deal by talking with various congressional staffers. "We would talk about the differences in congressmen and how they run their offices, and also about career opportunities in jobs like legislative correspondent, legislative assistant, or administrative assistant," he recalls. "Many jobs in Washington are stepping stones, where you gain knowledge and experience, then move up."

Meeting the Nation's Leaders

A Washington intern's knowledge invariably mushrooms with the help of outside-the-office experiences. Stefaniak lunched with Congressman O'Brien and with Bill Nixon, chief press secretary for Margaret Heckler, recent director of Health and Human Services and now ambassador to Ireland; he met members of the Father Martin Jenco family (Father Jenco is a hostage in Lebanon and his family resides in Congressman O'Brien's district); he met Marty Russo, another Illinois congressman; and he developed friendships and shared information with a multitude of other interns, congressional staff members, and persons working in various areas ranging from the Public Defender Service to the American Heart Association.

"Aside from expanding my overall understanding of our government, I learned about proper protocol within congressional offices and sharpened my writing, communication, and social skills, and learned more about computers," he says. "I believe this congressional internship will improve my chances of getting into law school after graduation; I'd like to study law at either Notre Dame or Loyola of Chicago," he adds.

In order to undertake this internship and still not fall behind his classmates in fulfilling graduation requirements on time, Stefaniak took summer classes in 1985. He received nine hours of academic credit for the internship.

"My biggest problem before starting the internship was finding housing in Washington, where you can't get a decent apartment for less than $600 a month," he reports. "I finally found a small apartment for $700 a month and split the cost with another intern whom I roomed with."

Politics is no stranger to Stefaniak, whose uncle is mayor of Calumet City, Ill., and whose grandfather was a long-time court clerk who once ran for mayor.

Mike Minielli '86

Law Intern Works With Puma Lawyers

Experience is one of the most valuable commodities an attorney can own, and thanks to the help of the Lafayette firm of Merritt & Troemel, Saint Joseph's senior Mike Minielli now has a much clearer view of his professional goals.

Minielli, a political science major from Evansville, Ind., worked two afternoons per week during the second semester as an intern at Merritt & Troemel, and the value of this experience isn't lost upon him.

"A Terrific Experience"

"I gained a terrific experience before going into law school — an experience a lot of law school students never get at the undergraduate level," he says. "This internship has given me a lot of motivation regarding my commitment to enter law school and to pursue something I've wanted to do since I was a college freshman."

Minielli received a bachelor of science degree in history from SJC this May and plans to enter Loyola University (Chicago) School of Law this fall.

Criminal law has been his area of greatest interest, but he says this internship has also exposed him to civil and corporate law. "This gives me a more thorough background on which eventually to choose an area of specialization," he points out.

For anyone interested in law, Minielli says, "This sort of experience is what I'd recommend. This isn't like reading a book for a test — it's very practical experience. It's the most work I ever did for three hours of credit, but it was well worth it. The benefits far outweigh the costs."

Worked With SJC Grads

Minielli worked with Ray Merritt, a 1977 Joseph's alumnus who is president of the College's Alumni Association, and who works mostly with civil cases, while his partner, Mike Troemel, is primarily involved with criminal cases. Minielli also worked with junior partner Stephen Meyer, a 1981 graduate of Saint Joe.

Minielli expresses his admiration for his employers, indicating that they have helped him sharpen his focus on what's important for a college graduate who plans to enter law.

"They have stressed that I need to be good at expressing myself, getting my points across whether I'm speaking

"This experience has given me a lot of motivation to enter law school."

or writing, and also that the experience of dealing with people is very important, for a sound understanding of human relations is critical to maintaining a high professional reputation for your law firm," he says. "Their advice has reinforced what I've learned in the classroom at Saint Joe's."

Communications Industry Revealed To Public Relations Intern

Match a radio/television-communications major here at Saint Joseph's with a four-month internship at a Lafayette public relations firm, and the result is a more mature, self-confident professional of tomorrow.

Beth Daniel (junior, Gary, Ind.) worked two afternoons per week during the second semester of 1985-86 at John Strathman Public Relations Organization, Inc., and the benefits of this three-credit-hour experience are readily apparent to her.

A Confidence-Booster

"This internship was a very worthwhile experience because it gave me a better idea of what the communications industry is like, it helped me mature more quickly as a professional and discover what I'm good at, and it boosted my self-confidence," Daniel explains. "It also showed me where my interests lay and the sort of dedication necessary if I am to be successful in this field."

Daniel says her employer is "a relatively new firm that helps its clients achieve various public relations goals." For example, the firm is a consultant to the producers of "Ag Day," a 30-minute, nationally syndicated television program that treats a variety of agriculture-related topics ranging from stock and commodities reports to detailed 90-day weather forecasts.

Daniel has rewritten copy and edited news that is subsequently used by "Ag Day" broadcasters.

Involved with Clients

"I also worked with individual clients on various promotional and advertising campaigns," says Daniel. "The projects vary widely — some previous Saint Joe interns have worked on promotionals for tree nurseries, the White River Games at Indianapolis, and several athletic programs at Purdue, for example."

Daniel says she would like to work behind the scenes in either radio or television journalism and experience some of the writing-editing-producing work essential to quality broadcasting, as well as the promotional work now common to this field.

"I'm interested in the creation of ideas that promote public awareness of radio and television, and in the preparation and editing of on-the-air packages," she says. "Eventually, I'd like to get into the management end of radio or television."

This work experience has given her a deeper respect for professionals in the communications industry, plus a realization that "It's not all fun and games — there is a lot of day-to-day repetition and routine chores. You do what you have to do to get the job done and to do it well."

Do you know someone who would make a great Saint Joe alum?

If you do, we'd like to hear from you. If you could recommend a high school student who would benefit from the Saint Joe experience, please send our Admissions Office his or her name. We'll follow through on your recommendation by personally contacting that prospective Saint Joe graduate.

Senior Of The Year Named

Marie LaMere, an elementary education major from Crown Point, Ind., has been named Senior of the Year for 1986 by the Alumni Association's Board of Directors.

LaMere was on the Dean's List throughout her career at Saint Joe, was a member of the Blue Key Honor Society, and was Saint Joseph's 1985 Homecoming Queen. She served as vice president of her junior class and secretary of her senior class. For four years she was secretary in the athletic department, cheerleader, and member of the Education Club.

Senior of the Year candidates are elected by their classmates and the winner is chosen by a special committee of the Alumni Board.

Other Finalists

The four other candidates for the Senior of the Year Award were: Kathy Lambert, a communications and theatre arts major from Waldwick, N.J.; Ralph Loura, a computer science-mathematics major from Lacona, N.Y.; Tom Madura, an accounting major from Willow Springs, Ill.; and Lise Westropp, a political science major from Fort Wayne, Ind.

Wilson Scholars Visit

Joan Beck, a member of the editorial board of the Chicago Tribune, and Ernest Beck, well-known medical illustrator and author of medical textbooks, were Woodrow Wilson Senior Visiting Faculty Fellows at Saint Joseph's April 1-4.

The Becks attended classes, participated in in-class and extracurricular discussions with students and faculty, and shared in a variety of experiences with the College community.

Joan Beck

Joan Beck writes a twice-weekly column for the editorial page of the Tribune which is distributed through the Knight Newspaper Syndicate to other papers. Prior to her appointment to the editorial board in November 1975, she was editor of the Tribune's "Tempo" section.

She served on the Pulitzer Prize jury in 1979 and 1980 and was nominated by the jury for the Pulitzer Prize in editorial writing in 1980.

Mrs. Beck has also written columns and books on child care, including the books How to Raise A Better Child (1967), Is My Baby All Right? (1973), Effective Parenting (1976), and Best Beginnings.

She received bachelor of science and master of science in journalism degrees from the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University.

Ernest Beck is an internationally known medical illustrator whose work has appeared in many medical textbooks, encyclopedias, pharmaceutical company advertisements, and professional journals in the health care field. His newest book, of which he is both author and illustrator, is Mosby's Atlas of Functional Human Anatomy, published in April 1982.

Beck is a former managing editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and the AMA's other specialty journals. He is a member and past president of the Association of Medical Illustrators and former editor of the Journal of Biocommunication. He has won numerous awards for his illustrations, including the Outstanding Illustrated Medical Book Award in 1983.

He received a bachelor of science degree with a major in anatomy from Northwestern University and is a graduate of the master's level program in medical illustration at the University of Illinois College of Medicine.

The Becks reside in Lake Forest, Ill., and are the parents of two children: Melinda, a graduate of Yale University and a general editor and writer on national affairs for Newsweek magazine, and Christopher, a graduate of Duke University and the University of Missouri, who is a photojournalist.

Holstein & Voreis Inducted Into SJC Sports Hall Of Fame

Former Saint Joseph's basketball coach Jim Holstein and women's basketball standout Jennifer Voreis were inducted into the SJC Sports Hall of Fame on April 26.

Jim Holstein coached the Pumas through 130 wins during his 1961-72 career at the College — the most wins by any coach in SJC hardwood history. His 1969-70 team posted a 21-6 record, the best winning record for any one season in SJC's modern basketball era, and also won the Pumas' first-ever NCAA regional championship.

Holstein also coached the Pumas to the biggest upset victory in SJC history: a 61-59 decision over the University of Cincinnati on January 27, 1965, less than two seasons after Cincinnati's Bearcats had won the NCAA Division I national championship.

Holstein is now head basketball coach and athletic director at Saint Francis College in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Jennifer Voreis is the first female athlete to join the Sports Hall of Fame. A four-year letter winner during 1977-80, she was the all-time leader in career points scored until just this year, when senior Linda Weisenhahn broke her record. Voreis remains the recordholder in career rebounds, assists, and steals. She was named SJC's most valuable player for three consecutive years.

Voreis was an Academic All-American selection and a first-team Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women honoree as a senior. Her teams posted a cumulative 69-23 record and were AIAW state finalists twice in 1979 and 1980.

Voreis is now amateur athletic supervisor for the City of Indianapolis.

Sports Hall of Fame candidates are chosen by a special Hall of Fame nominating committee, which then submits the nominees to the Alumni Association's Board of Directors for final selection.

HOMECOMING '86 — Oct. 4
PARENTS DAY — Oct. 25

Keyser Wins Little 500

by Anna Williamson

April 29's Little 500 weekend was highlighted by Scott Keyser's record-breaking victory in the go-kart race. Keyser earned pole position and led the pack for nearly the entire race. He traveled a record 225 laps, breaking the old record of 186.

There were 15 entries in the race, and about two-thirds of them completed the three-hour-and-45-minute endurance test. John Roach jumped ahead when Keyser's belt guard fell off, offering Keyser a close battle for first place during the final hour of the race. Roach wound up in second place and was followed by Bruce Mathew, Tom Stefaniak, and Barclay Dwight.

Keyser's pit crew included Tim Mallone, Tom Roth, and Sue Cooney. Keyser praised them for "getting me in and out of the pits fast all day. They were a fundamental part of my winning."

Preparation for the race got underway a year ago with plans for changes and improvements. The most noticeable change was the addition of a bridge crossing the track in front of Seifert Hall. Black plastic fencing was also new this year and was purchased for safety reasons.

Another change was letting the drivers rebuild their engines if they so desired. A weight-limitation rule was added to prevent car and driver from weighing less than 275 pounds, a rule slowing down the race and making it more competitive.

Father William Kramer, C.P.P.S. was Grand Marshal of the 23rd annual Little 500 race. Little 500 chairman Jim Seibert said Fr. Kramer was selected because he is a long-time member of the Saint Joe community and has helped for several years with fuel testing for the race. "It was time for him to step up finally and get some recognition," explained Seibert.

Sophomore Maureen Field was crowned Little 500 queen, and her court consisted of senior Mardee LaMere, junior Denise McCarthy, and freshmen Heather Dunbar and Karen Deno.

Golf Outing '86

June 6 saw Chicago's Third Annual Alumni Golf Outing come to Old Oak Country Club in Orland Park, Ill.

The threat of rain did not deter the almost 100 golfers as they made their rounds on the course.

The rain stayed away throughout the day and on into the evening, when the golfers, spouses and friends came together for the evening dinner. Economics professor Father Paul White and Alumni Director Doug Drake addressed the Pumas, and a host of golf and door prizes was handed out.

Low gross winner was William Haggerty '82, earning an AM/FM clock/radio donated by Bob Straz '73. Low net winner was Matt Lynch '60, who won a set of irons donated by John '59 and Pete '63 Murray, and by Ron Dohr '57.

Ed Mulcahy '68 of the accounting firm of Mulcahy, Pauritsch & Salvador in Orland Park, Ill. was honorary chairman of the outing. Charlie Martin '73 was overall coordinator of the event, while Jack Joyce '72 was tournament chairman and Tim Buckley '73 was in charge of trophies and prizes.

Sports

Women's Track

Saint Joe's women's track team opened its season with a 76-58 win against Indiana Central on April 1.

On April 5, Saint Joseph's women ran away with eight first-place awards as the Pumas employed overall team balance to win the Manchester Invitational.

Final team scores were: Saint Joseph's 141, Manchester 115, Taylor 96, Alma 91, Marion 44, Defiance 20, Goshen 19, Notre Dame 15, Bluffton 9, and St. Mary's 8.

SJC also lead the pack in the next three contests, with the team completing a perfect year at Indiana Central University, where they literally ran away from a 15-team field to capture the Little State track championship and conclude their 1986 season with a glittering 29-0 record.

Final team scores: SJC 139, Indiana Central 97, Taylor 77, Manchester 72, Anderson 51, Marion 25, Notre Dame 23, St. Mary's 9, Evansville 13, DePauw 12, Southern Indiana 10, Goshen 10, Franklin 10, Earlham 0, and Vincennes 0.

The women's tracksters are only the second unbeaten and untied varsity team in the modern era of sports at Saint Joe, matching last fall's women's tennis team's 14-0 season.

It may take awhile to wipe the smile off the face of Saint Joe coach Dave Smith, because this women's track team has presented him with a winning season and a Little State title in a fashion unmatched in the recent history of Indiana small-college track.

"To me, the Little State was a dream come true, because seldom does everything go your way all day long with no problems or bad luck," says Smith. "The athletes deserve the credit for this, because our upperclassmen provided excellent leadership, everyone helped and encouraged each other, and everyone prepared themselves well mentally and physically. Moreover, everyone gave a 100 percent effort."

Men's Baseball

Inconsistency in pitching, fielding, and hitting was a problem as the Pumas went into the March 26 doubleheader against Appalachian State with only one win among five losses, but the team was able to gain an impressive second-game win at this contest.

Dave Mann hurled a masterful four-hitter, causing coach Dennis Stitz to comment, "We have made slow but steady progress, but it wasn't until the second game that we put it all together. We had great pitching, we played errorless ball, and we got all of our bats going at the same time."

March 30 saw Brad Connor's shutout pitching and a healthy Saint Joe offense sparkle as the baseball Pumas trounced Bristol (Tenn.) College in an 8-0, 11-3 doubleheader that sent SJC home from its week-long southern trip with a 5-9 season record.

Saint Joe split its last six games on the trip, prompting Stitz to comment, "This was a good learning experience for us, because we saw what we have to do to win and what happens when we don't play with intensity, enthusiasm, and emotion." He added, "Seven of our first 14 games have been against Division I schools, so I'm not discouraged with our season record to this point. The key is that we apply what we have learned to the rest of the season."

Less than impressive fielding in game one and a shortage of clutch hitting in game two proved costly to Saint Joseph's on April 1 as the Pumas dropped a 7-2, 4-3 doubleheader to Olivet Nazarene.

Saint Joe wasn't able to get out of its slump on April 2 when the Lewis Flyers captured a 2-0, 4-1 twin bill that left the Pumas with a 5-13 season record.

Then on April 9, SJC played the role of the overly generous host as Valparaiso took advantage of four Puma errors and picked up five unearned runs as the Crusaders captured an 11-4 victory.

SJC finally picked one up against Ashland, 4-3, only to lose to Ashland in the second game of the April 12 doubleheader, 7-2.

April 13 saw the Pumas continue to falter with a pair of one-run losses to IP-Fort Wayne, and a doubleheader loss to Illinois Tech brought SJC to a 7-24 record.

Saint Joe's hitters exploded for 29 runs and 31 hits on April 26 as the Pumas played their finest doubleheader of the 1986 season in romping past host IP-Fort Wayne, 19-3 and 10-1.

"Our hitting had been coming around for our last six games, but the bats really exploded this time," noted Stitz. "We had been getting good pitching and solid defense quite often this year, but the missing ingredient was the hitting, so this doubleheader win was very satisfying for all of us."

Lady luck smiled little on Saint Joseph's in the Wright State Tournament, as Saint Joe won only one of four contests to leave the Pumas with a 10-27 record.

A 9-0 win against Mercyhurst (Pa.) was balanced against a 12-1 loss to Southern Illinois-Edwardsville, bringing the final season record to 11 wins, 28 losses.

Men's Tennis

The SJC Men's tennis team began their winning season April 2 with a 7-2 opening win against Kankakee Community College. "It was a good way to start the season, and we got some good experience," noted Puma coach John Barrientos.

Five wins in six singles matches got the Saint Joe men off to a fast start April 6 as the Pumas rolled past IP-Fort Wayne, 7-2. Saint Joe's five singles winners dominated their foes, winning 10 sets by scores of at least 6-3, then SJC wrapped up the match with wins in the number two and three doubles contests.

SJC's men won seven straight matches after dividing the first two singles contests April 7 as the tennis squad scored an 8-1 victory over Indiana Central.

"I thought both teams adjusted well to very gusty winds, and we were fortunate to receive a two-match lead at the start due to forfeits," said coach Barrientos.

Another win against Kankakee, 8-1, a 6-3 loss to Franklin, and an 8-1 win vs. IP-Fort Wayne brought Saint Joe to the Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament, where the Pumas placed fifth among eight entrants.

Final team scores were: Northern Kentucky 31, Bellarmine 14, Lewis 11, Southern Indiana 8, Saint Joseph's 3, Indiana Central 2, IP-Fort Wayne 2, and Ashland 0.

Saint Joe ended its season with a 5-4 loss to Olivet Nazarene April 22. Olivet won four of six singles matches, then claimed the number two doubles contest to clinch the victory.

"We did not take advantage of the many opportunities we had to win this match," noted Barrientos. "Olivet has a fine team and played with more desire than we did."

SJC's final dual match record was 5 wins, 2 losses.

Men's Track

After placing third in a contest against Anderson and Huntington (107-70-31), and second against Valparaiso, 82-79, Saint Joe's men's track team placed fourth among five entrants at the Grace Relays April 12.

Final team scores were: Huntington 79, Grace 44½, Manchester 41, SJC 40½, and Marion 27. Saint Joe's Jeff Habrych took first in the shot put with a toss of 43 feet, seven inches.

The team improved its season record to 4-5 in its final contest April 22 as they slipped past Marion and Grace in a triangular track meet.

Final team scores were: SJC 72, Grace 68, and Marion 53. Jeff Habrych and Brian Gordon won two events each to lead the Puma charge: Habrych captured the shot put with a toss of 45 feet and the javelin with a throw of 146 feet, while Gordon won the 100-meter run in 11.3 seconds and the 200-meter run in 23.5 seconds.

Rob Michelbrink placed first in the 400-meter run in 53.5 seconds and joined Habrych and Gordon as a double winner with his distance of 40 feet, 3½ inches in the triple jump.

Gordon and Michelbrink also led the Puma 400-meter relay team to a victory in 45.9 seconds.

Final record: 4 wins, 5 losses.

Men's Softball

The softball Pumas began their season with a disappointing 10-game losing streak, including 5 losses at the Southern Indiana Tournament the last weekend in March.

They put an end to their 0-10 start by sweeping a doubleheader at home April 5 against IP-Fort Wayne, then splitting a twin bill against St. Mary's on April 6 to bring the Puma's season record to 3-11.

Valparaiso's pitchers then threw a pair of shutouts to the visiting Pumas on April 7 as the Crusaders claimed a doubleheader win by scores of 1-0 and 8-0.

SJC picked up an explosive

15-3 win over Kankakee Community College April 8, but Marian clipped the Pumas twice in a 7-6, 9-5 softball doubleheader sweep.

The Pumas then trimmed IP-Fort Wayne twice on April 12 by scores of 12-9 and 20-1, but the next day they dropped a 6-2, 6-1 doubleheader at Ashland to leave SJC with a 6-17 season record.

Saint Joe then lost two to Huntington and two to IUPUI-Indianapolis, but rallied to sweep a twin bill from visiting Purdue on April 19, 2-1 and 4-2.

An 11-0 loss to Lewis, and an 18-1 loss to Kankakee brought the Pumas final record to 8 wins, 23 losses.

Kappers Named Men's Basketball MVP

Center Stan Kappers of Fairfield, Ohio has been named the most valuable player of the 1985-86 men's basketball team.

Kappers led the Pumas in scoring with a 16.9 average and was second in rebounds with a 5.8 mark; he bagged 68 percent of his field goals (177 of 260) to rank among NCAA Division II leaders in this department.

Wiesenhahn Named Women's Basketball MVP

Center Linda Wiesenhahn of Cincinnati has been named most valuable player on the 1985-86 women's basketball varsity.

Weisenhahn led the Pumas in scoring with an 18.3 per-game average and also ranked second in rebounds with a 7.8 average. She finished her career as Saint Joseph's all-time leading women's scorer and she was the leading scorer this past season in the Great Lakes Valley Conference.
